What types of delivery from China to Canada do we provide

We offer various delivery options for shipping from China to Canada. We can ship goods from our warehouses in China to Amazon warehouses and addresses across Canada. There are several shipping methods available, with the most common ones being air freight and ocean freight.

Air freight from China to Canada

Air freight from China to Canada is the fastest way of shipping products. It is better for smaller shipments, as it is typically more expensive. However, it is often the best option when speed is a top priority (your cargo will be in Canada within 7-12 days).

Shipping Method	Weight/volume of cargo	Shipping time	Regularity	Delivery type
Regular flights	from 100 kg	7-10 days	each Thursday	door-to-door
Regular flights	from 100 kg	8-12 days	each Thursday	on Amazon

When should you use air freight from China?

Air freight is perfect for you if:

- you want to transport products several times faster than if it were sea freight;
- you don't have a lot of time to ship goods in time for a seasonal sale or Christmas holiday;
- you are ready to pay more for express shipping;
- you have a non-toxic, general commodity;
- you need cargo with minimal re-stacking in transit;
- you want a low risk of breakage or theft of goods during transportation.

Sea freight from China to Canada

Ocean shipping from China to Canada is the most cost-effective delivery method. Ocean freight is ideal for larger shipments, as transporting goods takes longer (from 30 days). However, it is often the best option for bulky or heavy items that would be prohibitively expensive to ship by air.

Shipping Method

Shipping Method	Weight/volume of cargo	Delivery time	Regularity	Delivery type
Regular sea	from 1 m ³	door-to-door 30-50 days	each Tuesday	door-to-door

SEA FREIGHT

cargoes from 1 m³

delivery from 30 days

weekly departure

door-to-door

When should you use sea freight from China?

That's why sea transportation is a cost-effective shipping option:

- it is economical to ship large quantities of heavy and oversized cargo over long distances;
- environmental friendliness - the ship has a lower fuel consumption and carbon footprint, so sea transportation is less harmful to the environment;
- higher throughput capacity compared to air freight - ships are capable of carrying large volumes of cargo, while the size and weight of the plane limits air transportation;
- lower transportation costs in general.

How to ship from China to Canada

To arrange delivery of your items with SWWLS, you will need to complete the following steps:

1. Determine the value of your shipment. This will be used to calculate the customs duties and shipping costs.
2. Provide us with the following information:
 - the pickup address in China;
 - final destination address in Canada;
 - type, dimensions, and weight of the shipment;
 - any special handling requirements.
3. Provide us with the necessary documentation. This may include a commercial invoice, packing list, and bill of lading.
4. Label and package your goods according to our shipping requirements. This will help to ensure that your shipment arrives safely and on time.

5. Pay for delivery and all related fees.

Once we have received all of the necessary information, we will begin the shipping process. We will keep you updated on the status of your shipment throughout the journey.

FCL and LCL shipping from China to Canada

FCL shipping from China to Canada - to deliver your goods in a full container (20, 40, or 45-foot container) fully loaded with your goods.

A Full Container Load shipping method is required when:

- there is a large batch of cargo (from 20 m³);
- it is necessary to send a large batch of goods at once without dividing them into several transportations;
- it is needed to assemble, load, and ship the cargo quickly.

LCL - is the placement of cargo from several shippers in one container.

Cargo consolidation (Less Container Load) is chosen when:

- cargo volume is less than 20 m³;
- it is necessary to reduce the financial burden per unit of time and distribute the costs over several transportation;
- there is an opportunity to wait more time.

Sea Shipping Routes from China to Canada

Sea transportation is a popular and profitable choice for shipping goods to Canada from China. Several sea shipping routes are available to facilitate cargo movement between these two countries.

1. Trans-Pacific Route: this is the primary seaway connecting China and Canada. Ships depart from main Chinese ports, such as Shanghai, Ningbo, or Shenzhen, and travel across the Pacific Ocean to reach ports in Canada.

2. Trans-Atlantic Route: Although less commonly used, the Trans-Atlantic route offers an alternative for shipping from China to the eastern parts of Canada, such as Halifax or Montreal. Ships sail across the Atlantic Ocean, passing through the Panama Canal or traveling around Cape Horn.

With trucking delivery, your items will ship by truck from the destination port to your doorstep. It takes about 1 to 2 days.

Freight Costs from China to Canada

It depends on various factors, including the shipping route, cargo volume, weight, and dimensions. You must also consider additional charges like customs taxes and other fees.

The total shipping cost consists of the following items:

Ocean Freight Charges: The introductory price is the ocean freight charges. Freight rates are determined based on the shipping route, container size (40 or 20ft), and cargo volume.

Customs Taxes: You must pay customs duties when importing cargo into Canada. The fee amount is based on the type, value of goods, and applicable tariff rates. Importers should be aware of these additional costs and factor them into their budget.

Additional Fees: When you move your goods to another country, various fees may apply, including documentation, terminal handling, and customs clearance charges. These fees vary among shipping lines and forwarders, so it's essential to inquire about them beforehand.

In conclusion, shipping from China to Canada involves utilizing sea routes like the Trans-Pacific or Trans-Atlantic routes. When calculating the total shipping costs, it's crucial to consider ocean freight charges and additional fees. By understanding the available routes, choosing a reliable freight forwarder, and estimating the associated costs, businesses can successfully ship goods to Canada from China.

Door-to-door shipping - Import from China to Canada

What exactly does door-to-door delivery entail? It encompasses the entire spectrum of tasks, from cargo reception to its ultimate delivery to the end recipient.

Throughout this service, shipments, be they containers or packages filled with merchandise, are dispatched to a Chinese port or airport. Subsequently, the cargo is transported to the designated country and then carefully directed to the consignee's specified address.

The conveyance to the final destination, whether a warehouse or an office, is expertly managed by renowned courier services such as DHL, FedEx, or UPS.

Selecting this service option saves valuable time and reduces expenses, as there is no need to engage multiple entities in the delivery process; a single contractor efficiently handles everything.

DDP shipping from China to Canada

DDP (Delivered Duty Paid) cargo transport from China to Canada is a comprehensive shipping remedy that streamlines handling goods in transit.

With DDP stipulations in place, the shipper assumes the responsibility for all expenditures, encompassing customs levies and taxes, ensuring a smooth entrance of merchandise for enterprises and individuals.

This solution proffers openness, dependability, and user-friendliness, ensuring the punctual delivery of your consignments to their Canadian endpoint, free from unforeseen hindrances or fiscal encumbrances.

Whether you represent a corporation aiming to optimize its logistical network or an individual engaged in international acquisitions, opt for DDP Shipping from China to Canada as the prime preference for efficient and untroubled dispatches.

DDP air freight from China to Canada

DDP air freight simplifies global shipping for both buyers and sellers. The seller manages pickup, air transport, customs, and final delivery, reducing buyer concerns and ensuring a smooth process.

We provide transportation of cargoes from 100 kg by air on DDP terms within 10 to 14 days.

DDP sea shipping from China to Canada

Shipping by sea remains a prevalent choice for transporting goods, mainly imports from China to Canada.

Sea shipping from Canada to Germany encompasses 30 to 50 days, contingent on factors such as selected departure and arrival ports and the influence of seasonal sailing schedules.

Import customs clearance in Canada

Here are the customs processes and the steps involved in clearing goods for import cargo in Canada:

1.Preparation for import:

- obtaining a Business Number from the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA).
- identifying the type and country of origin items you want to import.
- ensuring the goods you wish to import are permitted into Canada.

2.Goods classifying. The products you import must be classified under the Harmonized System (HS) tariff, which determines the applicable import taxes.

3.Determination of duties and taxes. These are based on the HS tariff, the quantity and value of the goods, and the country of origin.

4.Shipment and reporting of goods. When your cargo arrives in Canada, it will be imported through a Canadian Border Services Agency (CBSA) office. You will need to provide the CBSA with the following information:

- your Business Number;
- the HS tariff classification of items;
- the quantity and value of the cargo;
- the country of origin of your good;

5.Passing customs control. Once the CBSA has reviewed your paperwork, they will release your goods.
