Malaysia-China Trade Relations

Malaysia and China have a strong and growing trade relationship. In 2024, bilateral trade volume reached US$212.04 billion, marking a significant increase. China has been Malaysia's largest trading partner for 15 consecutive years, and Malaysia is China's second-largest trading partner in ASEAN.

Trade between the two countries spans various sectors, with electrical machinery and equipment being a significant part of the exports from Malaysia to China^[48]. This robust trade relationship is further strengthened by recent agreements and memorandums of understanding (MOUs) signed between the two nations.

Malaysia's Import Taxes

Malaysia imposes import taxes on various goods to protect domestic industries and manage trade balances. While specific tax rates can vary depending on the product category and origin, the general structure includes:

Product Category	Typical Import Tax Rate
Electrical Machinery and Equipment	Varies, often around 5-10%
Automotive Parts	Varies, often around 10-15%
Textiles and Apparel	Varies, often around 5-8%

These rates are subject to change based on trade agreements and domestic policies^[49].
